

ZPID on Tour

Open Science Tools and Services For Your Scientific Work

ZPID - Leibniz Institute for Psychology Information offers the academic community in psychology and related disciplines a unique collection of free services that facilitate their work. Based on an ideal-type research cycle, ZPID supports the entire scientific work process from gathering ideas and researching literature to documenting research, archiving data, and publishing the results.

To learn more about ZPID's services, there will be a presentation and discussion at LifBi. The focus will be on preregistration, data collection, archiving and publication services.
